

The Nine Perfections

Over the last several years Feng Shui, the art of placement or what Taoist tradition calls the pattern of wind and water has gained great popularity in the West. The beginning of this form of Ancient Shamanism dates around 2,200 B.C. It's Hindu cousin, Vastu is based on sacred texts known as Shastras, and describe the four elements of: earth (Bhumi); water (Jal); light or fire (Agni); air (Vayu) and undifferentiated space (Akasha).

Understanding and mastering the movement of these forces was an important aspect of the role of ancient leaders and early Chinese Shaman-Kings. Eva Wong writes of this remarkable history in her book, Feng Shui, The Ancient Wisdom Of Harmonious Living For Modern Times, "The ancient shaman-kings' mastery of the elements can also be attributed to their knowledge of landforms and weather. Fog, cloud, mist, and rain are associated with certain geographical features, and the king was expected to lead his tribe safely through treacherous terrain."

These remarkable systems track energy movement on Mother Earth and when we honor and balance these forces in our homes and businesses the science of the five elements (known as earth, water, fire, air and metal in the Chinese system) produce nourishment, blessings and balance in our lives. In this time of Great Change comprehension of the primal forces of life and nature initiates our consciousness to a spacious spectrum of the unseen order, and prepares one for Unana, unity consciousness and the birth of the fourth and fifth dimensions.

"We live in an amazing matrix of forces," writes William Levacy in Beneath A Vedic Sky, "Many of which the Vedic literature hints at, but Western science has yet to discover or understand. It's easy to see that if we are in proper alignment with these forces, much like being oriented correctly with a river's current, we will benefit. If we are misaligned and out of phase with the solar and geomagnetic forces, we can imagine and experience how dysfunctional and arrhythmic our life has become."

The principle of sattva in Hindu means pure and unadulterated. The Buddhist principle of sattva, once explained by Kuan Yin means harmonious response to vibration or rhythm. There is a perfected outcome in understanding and applying this profound knowledge.

One basis of Feng Shui or Vastu relies on the geometric language contained within the pa-kua (also called bagua) and its nine directions. The Master Teachers refer to this as the eight-sided cell of perfection and the nine-directions as the Nine Perfections. In Feng Shui the pa-kua contains nine palaces. In Vastu, energy divides into eight directions and the center is Brahma, Lord Of Creation.

According to the Master Teachers, the eight-sided cell of perfection resides within us at a cellular and metaphoric, spiritual level. This perfect cell guides the awakening process and directs our consciousness and spiritual growth and development.

Here are descriptions of the Nine Perfections. You may quickly identify certain areas of your life that are not working as well as you'd like and may find some parallels existing within the interior spaces of your home. This same system also works as a greater microcosm, and overlays every Golden City Vortex. Displaying the shamanic energy flow of each Ascended Master's Golden City Vortex, this system maps the lei-lines and meridians, defining each palace of perfected energy.

First Perfection: Temple Of Being. Direction: Center. Colors: Green, White. Spiritual fire, heart and health.

Second Perfection: Divine Purpose. Direction: South. Colors: Brown, Red, Gold. Self-expression.

Third Perfection: Marriage. Direction: Southeast. Colors: Olive, Pink, Platinum. Sharing and mate.

Fourth Perfection: Family. Direction: Southwest. Colors: Sage, Ruby, Diamond. The World in Cosmic Motion.

Fifth Perfection: Children. Direction: East. Colors: Aqua, Blue, Indigo. Generation through nature.

Sixth Perfection: Spirit Guides. Direction: Northeast. Colors: Aqua Green, Light Blue, Purple. Spiritual teachers.

Seventh Perfection: Abundance. Direction: North. Colors: Green, Sky Blue, Black. Money and Growth.

Eighth Perfection: Career. Direction: Northwest. Colors: Grey, Turquoise, Navy Blue. The World (Illusion).

Ninth Perfection: Star Of Knowledge. Direction: West. Colors: Spring Green, Sunshine Yellow and Gold-White. Choice.

Alongside the system of the Nine Perfections, the Master Teachers map subtle energy changes within each doorway of a Golden City Vortex.
